An Honored Citizen Gone. Sudden Death of Mr. John B. Morton-Brief

Review of a Uuseful and Christian Life. The announcement early yesterday morning of the sudden death of Mr. John B. Morton, cashier of the Merchants National Bank, was shocking intelligence to his large family and extended circle of friends and Thursday he was at the bank attending to his duties and seemed in unusual good spirits. He retired as usual that night, and his good wife was borrified to find, upon attempting to awake him yesterday morning, that he had died while she fancied him peacefully sleeping by her side. John B. Morton was born in Stafford county, Va., July 4, 1807. When quite a young man he settled in Baltimore, and was book-keeper in the Merchants Bank of that city. From Baltimore he removed to Richmond and engaged in the brokerage business. From 1853 to 1855 he was con-nected with Mr. R. H. Maury. At the organization of the Bank of the Commonwealth he was elected cashier, which position be held until some time during the war, when he resigned, and was engaged in business with Thomas Branch & Co. until the evacuation. In 1865, when the National Bunk of Virginia was organized, he was made cashier. He continued in this position until the winter of 1870, when he resigned to accept the cashiership of the Merchants National Bank, the position he held at the time of his death. He leaves a large family to mourn their loss. His sons all hold honorable positions of trust-one in the National Bank of Virginia, one in the Planters National Bank, and one in the Merchants National Bank of this city, while his youngest son, D'Arey Paul Morton, holds a very responsible office in New York His sisters-Mrs. Neison Head and Mrs. Jamson-live the one in Leesburg, Va., and the other in Lynchburg.

The death of no man has been more widely or sincerely lamented by the people of Richmond, who held him in deservedly high regard. For more than thirty years he was closely identified with our business interests, and from time to time had held various prominent and responsible positions.

Mr. Morton was a man of high character None came into his presence who were not at once impressed with the manliness of his character; and to know him was to love him. His intercourse with his fellow-citizens was at all times characterized by that courtesy and urbanity which bespeaks a gentle and generous nature.

He was a Christian of the noblest type.

His daily walk, both public and private illustrated in the clearest manner the pure and heavenly principles which he professed. Always and everywhere he was the same consistent, and devoted disciple of Christ. Religious duties were never neglected. The industry, fidelity, and love of system which characterized his secular also marked and made successful his religious life. He was a con-stant and thoughtful reader of good books, and particularly the Bible, which in private was his almos onstant companion. in conversation on Christian themes, and especially on experimental re-He was a Methodist, and had been for a long period a member of the Centenary church, in this city. He said that he was present, in company with Cap-tain Spotswood, to see if some arrange-ment could not be made between the pro-posed association and the First Virginia egiment which would be mutually advanregiment which would be mutually advan-tageous. The First regiment armory would in all probability be completed by the mid-dle of October. It would be a build-ing admirably suited in every respect for the holding of an exhibition. It would cost, he said, at least $5,000 to erect a temporary exhibition hall, and his proposition was that the and his proposition was that the associa-tion, instead of building one, would use the new armory until such time as it could build a permanent hall that would be an ornament to the city. If the Association made nothing, it would lose nothing on account of rent; and if it was successful, the regiment would expect only a moderate com-pensation for the use of the armory. He also stated that a committee from the regi-ment had been appointed to confer with the committee from the proposed association with reference to this matter.

Captain M. L. Spotswood also addressed the meeting in relation to the arrangement proposed by the regiment. He endorsed the views of Colonel Purcell. The chairman stated that at the proper time Colonel Purcell's proposition would be duly considered. The meeting then resumed its delibera-

MANCHESTER AND VICINITY.

Manchester Public Schools The Manchester public schools closed yesterday for vacation, and will not reopen until October. Several members of the City School Board visited the schools in the morning to hear the reports of the different ones for the session just ended. The reports were very encouraging-more so than for any session previous—a fact gratifying to the teachers as well as to the patrons of the schools. The members of the Board were well pleased with the manner in which the schools have been conducted, and the teachers deserve to be congratulated upon the marked proficiency of the scholars,

Below we give the reports of the differen schools: High School-E. Morrissette principal .-List of pupils entitled to certificates of dis-
